A Quality Approach to Child Care

The early years of a child's life are crucial. Scientists and researchers around the world have confirmed that brain growth and development of infants and young children are deeply affected by their early experiences. The more that we can ensure that these experiences are positive the better off they will be in the future.

This imparts an enormous responsibility on child care providers. They must work with the parent as a partner in their child's development, respect and support the parent's ideas, and nurture and stimulate their child. In short, a caregiver must provide quality child care.

Quality child care is where all children receive individual care and attention, learn how to get along with others and feel good about themselves. It is clean, safe and comfortable. There is a quiet space for rest or sleep, as well as both indoor and outdoor play areas and a range of toys and equipment for play and learning.

Quality child care has caregivers who genuinely like children and understand their differences. These are caregivers who recognize behaviour that indicates a child needs help, who are aware of cultural and religious diversity, and who are able to offer games and activities appropriate to the ages and developmental stages and interests of the children in their care. They are also able to encourage the self-esteem of each child through warm and loving guidance, and are willing to work with the parent to develop common goals.

Enhanced child care referrals

The CCRR maintains a database of licensed and registered license-not-required child care facilities for the communities we serve. The CCRR reviews each parents request using our database of child care programs to help determine special requests and care needs, hours of operation, ages of children, location, and school's serviced. The CCRR will then provide parents with information (both written and/or verbal) on child care to help inform them of their child care options. The CCRR will provide referrals that most closely match the family's request and, if applicable, have vacancies.

Members of the CCRR are able to provide CCRR staff with additional information on their facilities such as:

- Programming information
- Qualifications of care provider
- Hours of operation
- Languages spoken
- Schools served, etc.

This information is of great interest to parents who are searching for child care and it is to your advantage to provide these details. There may be times when you will need to make changes to your profile. Your updates can be made by calling the Tri-Cities office at 604-931-3400 Ext. 0, or complete the online form with any details you would like to update by visiting <https://www.gv.ymca.ca/ccrr-membership-update>.
